This special topic sourcebook provides basic references related to the use of local history in the classroom. An effort was made to include only those items which are current and relevant.

The sourcebook makes no claim to being comprehensive or exhaustive, but rather is selective. The opinions expressed in individual references do not necessarily reflect the views of Project STRIDE. An effort was made to include a variety of perspectives on each issue.

Reference lists can be indispensible tools for the development of ideas in a special area of study. We intend that this sourcebook be viewed as a point of departure to further research and exploration.
